To whom it may concern:

Last spring, when Chiropractic Economics, which is dedicated to providing pragmatic practice-building information to doctors of chiropractic, decided to launch a newsletter and Web site for students, I asked Jean Murray to guide us in identifying the needs of students and to provide content for our project.

The material Dr. Murray has provided has been of consistently excellent quality. She freely shares her expertise. Chiropractic Economics is known for publishing editorial content that “talks to” readers and for giving them “take away” information. Dr. Murray immediately picked up on this style. Her material needs very little copy editing.

I appreciate the fact that she respects deadlines and is willing to work material to meet my standards.

Sincerely,

Linda J. Segall
